

The Cyclades Islands

The Cyclades – literally 'the scattered islands' - in the central Aegean are most people's idea of how the Greek Islands should look. There are dazzling flat-roofed villages to explore, timeless harbours, excellent beaches, and tiny chapels everywhere. Each island has its own distinct history, customs and atmosphere, and each contrasts in landscape and terrain with its neighbour.

Andros

Low key Andros, the second largest Cyclades island, is blessed with a lush landscape, superb sandy beaches lapped by a turquoise-clear sea and an authentic Greek atmosphere.

Ios

In the heart of the Cyclades, Ios is known for its lively side and beautiful beaches. But, there are hidden treasures to seek out and get to know.

Kimolos

Kimolos remains a backwater - overlooked by the crowds. It is an island for those looking for a complete escape and who appreciate the timeless nature of small traditional Greek islands.

Santorini

Think of Greece and images of the Cyclades Islands often spring to mind. Whitewashed villages clinging to dramatic cliffs, their blue churches echoing with centuries of tradition. Turquoise waters, volcanic landscapes and hidden beaches. The result is an awe-inspiring scene of colour and life.

Tinos

Tinos remains blissfully under the radar to foreign tourists and is as traditional and Greek as islands come. It is a centre for pilgrimage and its many villages are renowned, collectively, for their beauty.

Syros

Syros' past importance and historical wealth is reflected in the neo-classical mansions and elegant squares of the main town. Elsewhere there are villages and good sandy beaches to explore.

Naxos

Away from its atmospheric port and handful of small resorts Naxos has largely preserved its slower, very Greek pace of life. It offers abundant sandy beaches and a fertile interior still dedicated to farming.

Paros

A gentle landscape hides windmills, sparkling white village and excellent beaches - on the east coast you will find miles of uncrowded sand. The best of all Cyclades islands from which to island hop.

Santorini

Famous Santorini is an island that is startlingly unlike any other. Sheer volcanic cliffs, embroidered on their heights by whitewashed villages, plunge 1,000 feet to the sea. Its beauty inevitably attracts lots of people!

Amorgos

Amorgos is one of the most remote, yet wildly beautiful, of all Greece's islands and remains one of the least-known and visited of the Cyclades. A laid back natural paradise.

Folegandros

A hidden gem, Folegandros remains true to the austere beauty of its rugged landscape, with its wonderfully atmospheric main village perched on cliffs that seem to fall directly into a dazzling ocean.

Milos

The volcanic origins of Milos have endowed it with a very special geology. Rugged and hilly, it has a richly variegated coastline: sandy beaches, bleached smooth moonscape and colourful rock formations.

Sifnos

Sophisticated Sifnos attracts a discerning visitor. Its clean sandy beaches and pretty white villages are backed by hills good for walking. Sifnos is known for its cuisine and pottery.

Serifos

In search of a Cycladic island with some 60 sandy beaches, a lovely Chora high above the port, walking trails and delicious local cuisine, but with fewer visitors than most? Look no further.

Kythnos

An undiscovered and charming island that calls for you to immerse yourself in local life. Colourful festivals, gorgeous inland villages, ruined castles and more.

Kea

Kea is the closest Cycladic Island to Athens and yet is surprisingly one of the least known: Athenians like to keep to themselves. There is a Neolithic settlement, fine sandy beaches and oodles of traditional Greek charm.

Andros, Tinos & Syros

Andros, Tinos and Syros, three Cyclades islands that remain authentic and, largely, under the tourist radar. From mountain peaks, undulating verdant landscapes, white-washed villages and elegant mansions, not to mention spectacular beaches, you can find them here. Visit one or visit them all.

Island hopping in the eastern Cyclades

Paros | Naxos | Amorgos

Unleash your inner explorer and surrender to the beauty of the Aegean Sea on an unforgettable island-hopping adventure in the eastern Cyclades, a captivating archipelago known for its whitewashed villages, pristine beaches and vibrant culture.

This ten night carefully curated itinerary visits three distinct, yet complementary, island paradises – Paros, Naxos, and Amorgos, with each night leaving you yearning for more.

We have utilised flights to Mykonos, from which it is only 1 hour by ferry to Paros, but flying into Santorini is also possible and, of course, into Athens with either ferry or flight connections. All transfers and hydrofoil/ferry services are included and on each island you have the support of our local partners.

If this trip doesn't quite fit the bill, speak to our destination specialists and we will work with you to design your perfect escape.

Day 1 - Arrival on Paros

On arrival at Mykonos Airport, transfer to the port (4km) and then ferry to Paros (1 hour).

Overnight on Paros.

Days 2 and 3 - Explore Paros

Paros has, in recent years, grown in popularity with visitors drawn to its excellent beaches and pretty resort villages. There is something for everyone here, from cosmopolitan Naoussa with its lively energy, chic boutiques and traditional tavernas to the quaint village of Piso Livadi and its miles of uncrowded sand. In between is a gentle landscape hiding windmills and sparkling white villages.

Ferry connections to/through Paros are some of the best in the archipelago. It is possible to visit the satellite island of Antiparos (just a 10 minute ferry hop), Mykonos (including the holy island and site of Delos just offshore) and Santorini on a day excursion.

So, the decision is yours. Do you relax on the beach, hire a car or join a sightseeing tour?

Overnight on Paros.

Day 4 – Transfer to Naxos

Forty minutes to the east of Paros is Naxos, the largest and greenest island in the Cyclades. At 430km² it is twice the size of its neighbour and which has enabled the island to preserve its slower, more Greek pace of life away from the main town and a handful of burgeoning resorts. Its fertile interior remains dedicated to farming and is superb walking country.

Overnight on Naxos.

Days 5 and 6 – Explore Naxos

Naxos is wildly diverse; tall mountainous ranges are contrasted by lush valleys dotted with citrus groves and olive trees, and long sandy beaches – 92km in total. The beaches of Prokopios and Ayia Anna gently shelve into the clear blue seas making them an excellent choice for families, and further south you'll find the great golden sweep of Pyrgaki – the rule of thumb being the further south you travel the better the beaches become and the emptier.

Naxos Town is particularly attractive, its extensive waterfront bedecked with tavernas and small shops. Behind, a maze of narrow streets and tiny passages leads to the Venetian Kastro, worth visiting for the island's archaeological museum.

Inland is superb walking country and there are numerous marked trails crisscrossing the island.

Overnight on Naxos.

Day 7 – Transfer to Amorgos

From Naxos your journey continues to Amorgos, one of the most remote, yet most beautiful, of all Greece's islands and one of the least-known and visited of the Cyclades. Journey time, dependent on vessel, is between 90 minutes and 4 hours – the shorter connection being our preference.

Overnight on Amorgos.

Days 8, 9 and 10 – Explore Amorgos

A stay on Amorgos promises an escape into serenity and an insight into an island lifestyle that has stood the test of time.

Our hotels are in the north east, in or close to the attractive small fishing village of Aegialis, which has a fine sandy beach. Amorgos beckons for exploration. Hike through rugged gorges, in the foothills of its mountains and climb to the summit of Krikellos, the island's highest peak (821m). It is a natural paradise and the views, colours and smells tantalise all the senses.

The seas around the island are crystal clear and – for those who venture – the beauty of hidden beaches like Agia Anna and Kalokairi, accessible only by foot or by boat, are a sight to behold.

Chora itself is one of the most attractive Cycladic towns, whitewashed with chapels and Venetian fortifications. A short walk, leads to Hozoviotissa monastery; Amorgos' most famous attraction.

Overnight on Amorgos.

Day 11 – Day of departure

Transfer from Amorgos to Mykonos (2 hours) for your return flight to the UK.

Duration

10 nights

Itinerary includes:

- Return flights to Athens
- 3 Nights Paros - Bed and Breakfast
- 3 Nights Naxos - Bed and Breakfast

Island hopping in the western Cyclades

Milos | Serifos | Sifnos

Whilst the islands of Santorini, Mykonos, Paros and Naxos are well-known, the western islands of the group are less frequented and richly reward those willing to make the journey.

This ten night island hopping itinerary visits Milos, Sifnos and Serifos. It is a mere example of the combinations and complexity of trip we can arrange. Time in Athens can also be incorporated and, as always, all transfers and ferry services are included and support provided throughout.

Day 1 - Arrival on Milos

A same day flight connects the UK to Milos, via Athens; the latter part of your journey being a short, 40 minute flight.

Overnight on Milos.

Days 2 and 3 - Explore Milos

The volcanic origins of the island of Milos have endowed it with a very special geology. Rugged and hilly, it has a richly variegated coastline, ranging from curving sandy beaches to bleached smooth moonscape, from hidden lagoons and hot springs to colourful rock formations erupted from the seabed. It is also the homeland of the marble statue of Venus of Milo seen today in the Louvre, Paris.

Plaka, the old capital perched on its hilltop, is particularly atmospheric in the evenings. There are over 70 beaches on the island, and our featured village of Pollonia has its own sweep of sand shaded by tamarisk trees, with more beaches to either side.

A unique and fascinating attraction are the Catacombs of Milos, dating from the 1st - 5th century. This ancient site located in the village of Tripiti is among the three most important worldwide, together with the catacombs of Rome and the Holy Land. It is possible that the Catacombs of Milos are older than the ones of Rome.

Boat trips and kayaking tours are available and it is also possible to visit neighbouring Kimolos, a sleepy backwater 30 minutes across the water.

Overnight on Milos.

Day 4 - Transfer to Sifnos

Only 40-50 minutes from Milos, Sifnos is a complete contrast. Where volcanic features dominate on Milos, on Sifnos you'll discover an island of fertile valleys, terraced fields and lofty mountains, classically Cycladic villages and some 227 churches.

Overnight on Sifnos.

Days 5, 6 and 7 - Explore Sifnos

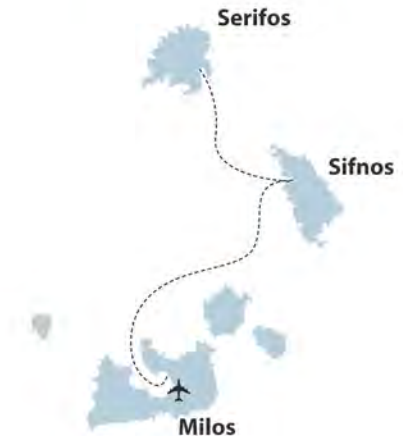

Sifnos stands out thanks to its traditional architecture, fascinating culinary scene, excellent beaches and its peaceful and relaxing atmosphere - making it a popular choice for those who relish the lesser-trodden path. There is a sense of traditional elegance and a creative air - local pottery and ceramics make excellent souvenirs.

Those visiting in springtime will enjoy the colour and fragrance from the island's carpet of wildflowers.

Overnight on Sifnos.

Day 8 - Transfer to Serifos

Transfer northeast to Serifos (20 minutes by ferry). Whilst sharing the same stunning Aegean backdrop and whitewashed villages as Milos and Sifnos, Serifos is renowned for its Chora (main village), one of the loveliest you will find and its rugged natural beauty, sculpted by the elements. Overnight on Serifos.

Days 9 and 10 - Explore Serifos

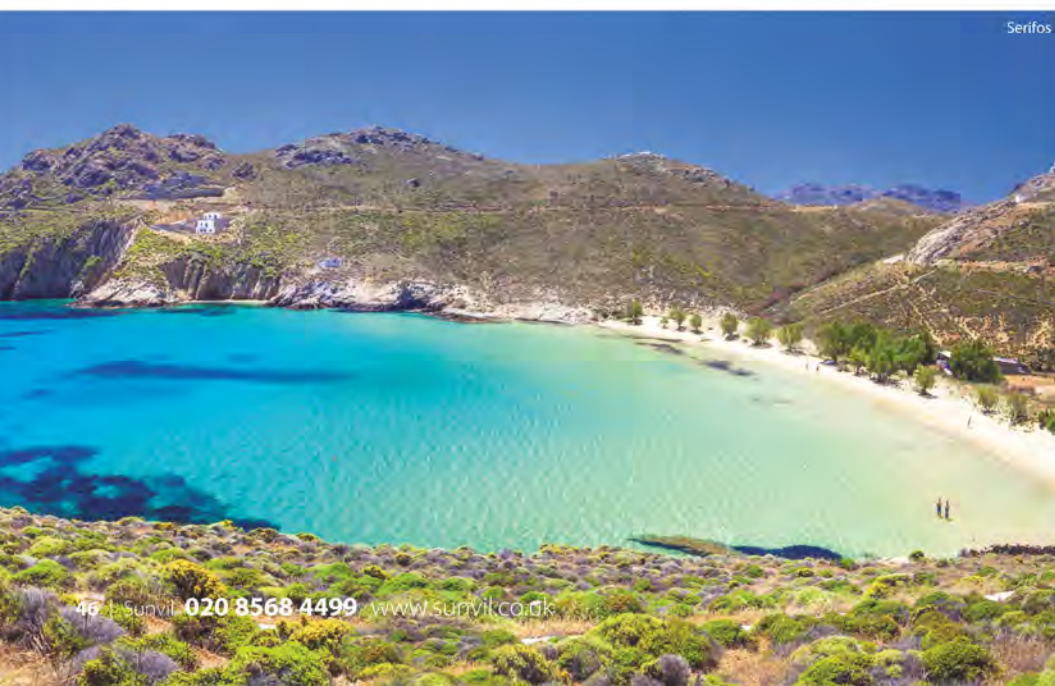

Despite being only a couple of hours from Athens, we're pleased that Serifos remains, largely, a secret and those that do come stay mainly in the little port of Livadi or its satellite Livadakia in the next bay (they are only a ten minute walk apart). This means that, for those of us who want to gain a deeper appreciation and understanding of our holiday destinations there is time and space to do so. It is so tranquil.

There are some 60 beaches on Serifos, nearly all of them sandy and many with natural shade. The main beach of Livadi would be the envy of many and Psili Ammos beach was once picked by The Sunday Times as Europe's Beach of the Year.

Overnight on Serifos.

Day 11 - Day of departure

Transfer from Serifos to Piraeus (2 hours) and then onto Athens Airport for your return flight to the UK.

Duration

14 nights

Itinerary includes:

- Return flights to Athens
- 3 Nights Milos - Bed and Breakfast
- 4 Nights Sifnos - Bed and Breakfast
- 3 Nights Serifos - Bed and Breakfast
- Transfers and ferry connections throughout

Island hopping in the northern Cyclades

Andros | Tinos | Syros

Verdant landscapes, historic monasteries, windmills, neoclassical mansions and pretty villages galore can be found on Andros, Tinos and Syros, yet all have, remarkably, retained a low key tourism industry and an authentic Greek atmosphere. A trip to the northern Cyclades will both confirm and challenge your expectations of the 'scattered islands' and we cannot wait to discover your favourite.

This ten night itinerary includes flights into Athens, returning from Mykonos but both airports operate as a gateway to the region and regular ferry connections are available from both. With over 50 years' experience we are well-versed in designing logical and well-paced itineraries, with all transportation incorporated into the holiday package provided. Speak to us and, together, we can plan your Greek island odyssey.

Day 1 - Arrival on Andros

On arrival at Athens Airport, transfer to Rafina port and then onwards to Andros (1-2 hours by ferry).
Overnight on Andros.

Days 2, 3 and 4 - Explore Andros

Andros is the second largest island of the Cyclades (after Naxos) and, due to the many underground springs, remains green throughout the summer. It is a paradise for walkers and there is a network of marked trails providing access to the island's mountains, valleys, monasteries and villages.

Andros' many beaches are mostly superb, ranging from long sandy crescents (such as that at Batsi) to secluded coves. It is at Batsi where most visitors choose to stay. This small resort-village has a friendly relaxed Greek air, fine beaches to either side, a good choice of restaurants and cafés and a handful of bars.

Overnight on Andros.

Day 5 - Transfer to Tinos

Transfer to the island of Tinos, 60-90 mins by ferry.
Overnight on Tinos.

Days 6 and 7 - Explore Tinos

Unlike its neighbour Mykonos, Tinos remains under the radar to foreign tourists and is as traditional and Greek as they come.

Tinos is not, however, unknown to Greeks. In fact it is one of the more visited islands, famous as a religious centre, and thus welcomes considerable numbers of Greek pilgrims who come to visit its imposing church at the top of the bustling town. Tinos makes its living from domestic tourism; this, for us, is a good thing!

But there is far more to Tinos. The island is known for its villages (over 50 and often cited as collectively the most beautiful of any Greek island), its windmills, its dovecotes and marble sculpture. Tinos has some fine beaches, a rural hilly interior good for walking and more to offer than many better-known islands.

A day trip to Mykonos (20 minutes by ferry) is possible.

Overnight on Tinos.

Day 8 - Transfer to Syros

A 30-50 minute ferry ride will take you from Tinos to Syros, another island blissfully untouched by large scale tourism developments.

Overnight on Syros.

Days 9 and 10 - Explore Syros

Syros' past importance and historical wealth is reflected in its imposing main town of Ermoupolis, the capital of the Cyclades, which boasts many neoclassical mansions, elegant squares, numerous churches and municipal buildings. The museum's exhibits show human settlement dating back 5000 years.

The town is divided into two parts, although today they are viewed as one. Ermoupolis and its neighbour Ano Syros are built around two hills, one topped with an Orthodox cathedral, the other with a Catholic cathedral.

Away from the town there are villages and good sandy beaches to explore, the most well-known being Galissas which has a small resort behind. All are served by an excellent bus network making independent exploration inexpensive and easy.

Overnight on Syros.

Day 11 - Day of departure

Transfer from Syros to Mykonos (25-45 minutes) for your return flight to the UK.

Duration

10 nights

Itinerary includes:
