

The North Aegean Islands

Greece's North Aegean islands lie close to Turkey and include four of Greece's top twelve islands by size. Although three have a direct flight from the UK they are often overlooked in favour of more well known names. Those who come are delighted to discover a wonderful mix of super scenery, historical interest and fine beaches. Each has its own distinct island culture and traditions, and the larger islands can absorb their summer visitor numbers with ease.

From Thassos in the north to Samos in the south, these islands offer fascinating and lesser known alternatives to the famous honeypot islands. Beaches of course there are, but the larger islands in particular are full of interest and will well reward exploration.

Lemnos

It does exist! An unspoiled island with a very Greek flavour, relatively few tourists, excellent sandy beaches, a characterful port, and a direct flight...

Lemnos lies halfway between the shores of Asia Minor and the slopes of Mount Athos. Indeed you can see Athos on a clear day, and they say that the holy mountain casts its shadow on Lemnos twice a year.

Lesvos

Lesvos, also called Mytilini, is the third largest island in Greece after Crete and Evia. It lies in the north-eastern Aegean close to Turkish shores, and offers such variety that whatever you seek from a holiday you should be able to find here. Olives, ouzo production, fishing and agriculture are still the priority here. An island that has kept its soul.

Chios

Chios is outstanding. Although the fifth largest island in Greece, it has never overly encouraged tourism and remains blissfully off the regular tourist trail. Those who do come will find an island with a rich history, a strong identity, a varied mountainous landscape and unique charms which inevitably draws people back. On Chios there is always something new to discover.

Thassos

This greenest and most northerly of the Greek islands is just 40 minutes by ferry from Kavala on the mainland, and combines the attractions of island life with diversity of the mainland. It is an island of contrasts: its 115 kms of coastline has a huge variety of beaches, from small, rocky coves to long, golden or white sand bays, whilst inland densely forested mountains rise to peaks of 1200m.

Samos

Samos, the birthplace of Pythagoras offers such variety that everyone should be able to find what they want from a holiday here. With some 160 kms of coastline and a rugged mountainous interior to explore, you will encounter impressive ancient Greek remains, magnificent scenery, traditional inland villages, small fishing hamlets, established seaside resorts and many fine beaches.

Ikaria

Ikaria is one of the most beautiful and unusual Greek islands we have ever set eyes upon. Its mountains, forests and beaches combine with the island's many legends, foibles and traditions in a heady Aegean cocktail. The island is also one of only five identified 'blue zones' on the planet - a place where people live remarkably longer lives. All the more wonder then that Ikaria is so little known.

Fourni

Connoisseurs of small, off-the-beaten-track Greek islands will love Fourni! A visit here will take you back to the feel of the smaller Greek islands as they were back in the 1980s. It has an attractive little port with an authentic traditional village atmosphere from where there are lovely sunsets - sleepier during the day than at night - and a working harbour and boatyard.

Lemnos

Lemnos resembles a huge butterfly, its many bays giving a coastline of some 260 kms and plenty of scope for exploration. Beaches are superb, being sandy and safe, and there are many to choose from. Lemnos is a very traditional island, where priorities remain agriculture and fishing rather than tourism.

Island hopping in the North Aegean

Chios | Lesvos | Samos

Our 14 night multi centre holiday to Chios, Lesvos and Samos is the perfect itinerary to immerse yourself in Greece's fabled history as well as while away the hours on beautiful sun-kissed beaches. We have utilised the short, local flight connections thus maximising the time spent in resort and avoiding long ferry journeys, although a ferry transfer can be substituted if desired.

Highlights include the medieval villages of Chios, the petrified forest on Lesvos, the ancient Temple of Hera and Eupalinos Tunnel on Samos, both dating from the 6th century BC, but the real delight is in the diversity of landscapes, age-old traditions, local culinary delights and spending time with those who call the islands their home.

We can alter the itinerary to suit tastes and budgets. Nothing is set in stone.

Day 1 - Arrival on Chios

A same day flight connects the UK to Chios, via Athens; the latter part of your journey being a short, 50 minute hop.

Overnight on Chios.

Days 2, 3, 4 and 5 - Explore Chios

Chios is outstanding. Although the 5th largest island in Greece, it has never overly encouraged tourism and remains blissfully off the regular tourist trail. Those who do come will find an island with a rich history, a strong identity, a mountainous landscape and unique charms which inevitably draw people back.

Chios' wealth stems from the mastic cultivation, an export industry since antiquity. In Greece, only on Chios can the trees containing this aromatic resin be found, and today there are 24 settlements, some 20 co-operatives, dedicated to the production and exportation of this natural substance. From the fields of trees to the intricately decorated village houses and mansions, the influence of the industry can be felt across island.

The capital, Chios Town, on the east coast, has a plethora of restaurants, cafes and bars and is always lively. Little of the town survived the earthquake of 1881 but the old quarter within the fortified castle is worth a wander. Other sites of interest include the medieval villages of Pyrgi and Olympi and the UNESCO-listed Nea Moni monastery, a masterpiece of Byzantine architecture.

Overnight on Chios.

Day 6 – Transfer to Lesvos

A 35 minute flight connects Chios to Lesvos, the country's 3rd largest island.

Overnight on Lesvos.

Days 7, 8 and 9 – Explore Lesvos

Lesvos offers such variety that whatever you seek from a holiday you should be able to find here.

The island offers a mix of olive, oak and pine forests to the east, a more rugged terrain to the west and a rolling, idyllic rural landscape in between. It is an island that has clung to its traditions - not only as seen in the largely unchanged way of village life but also in terms of the Arts. Legend has it that Orpheus' lyre washed ashore here; Aesop was born here; and Lesvos is 'where burning Sappho loved and sung' (Byron).

Not to be missed is the petrified forest, a UNESCO World Heritage Site that is a unique testament to the ecosystem that once existed in the Aegean region. The forest is scattered over an area of 15,000 hectares and consists of hundreds of fossilised trunks, standing or downed, coniferous or fruit-bearing.

It could rightly be argued that Lesvos is the perfect place for people who want to experience the real Greece.

Overnight on Lesvos.

Day 10 – Transfer to Samos

A 90 minute flight (via Chios) connects Lesvos to Samos.

Overnight on Samos.

Days 11, 12, 13 and 14 – Explore Samos

With 160 kms of coastline and a rugged mountainous interior to explore, you will find magnificent scenery, traditional inland villages, small fishing hamlets, established seaside resorts and many fine beaches on Samos.

Of course, with attractions like these, the island receives its fair share of visitors, but being about 50 miles long it is large enough to absorb its summer influx and away from the coast you can find yourself a peaceful spot in the mountain villages.

A regular excursion programme operates with visits to Patmos (Greece) and famous Ephesus (Turkey) on offer. Olive oil tasting and vineyard visits are other offerings alongside trips to the ancient Temple of Hera and Eupalinos Tunnel, in the environs of Pythagorion (Pythagoras was born here).

Overnight on Samos.

Day 15 – Day of departure

Transfer to Samos Airport for your return flight to the UK, via Athens.

Duration

14 nights

Itinerary includes:

- Return flights to Athens'
- 5 Nights Chios - Bed and Breakfast
- 4 Nights Lesvos - Bed and Breakfast
- 5 Nights Samos - Bed and Breakfast
