

With some 160 kms of coastline and a rugged mountainous interior to explore, you will encounter magnificent scenery, traditional inland villages, small fishing hamlets, established seaside resorts and many fine beaches.

Of course, with attractions like these, and an international airport to boot, Samos receives its fair share of visitors. But tourism here is aimed towards the upper end of the market and, besides, being about 50 miles long the island is large enough to absorb its summer influx.

The north and west attract many walkers in early and late season. Springtime and early summer see carpets of wild flowers. Pine-forests clad the lower mountain slopes the highest peak being Kerkis in the west at 1437m - and tracks link village to village. Gentler walking can be found through the olive groves and vineyards lower down.

Wherever you go you will find good beaches. They range from peaceful little pebble bays, with few people and one taverna, to longer stretches of sand or shingle with water sports and sunbeds for hire. Those on the north-east coast, picturesquely backed by cliff and pine, are popular and feature on all the postcards; those in the south are more sheltered and sandy towards the west. In common with all Aegean islands, Samos can be windy in the high summer months.

Samos has a good bus service, especially along the north coast from/to Samos Town (aka Vathy), and the roads are also generally in good condition, making it an easy island to explore. Sea excursions include guided day trips to famous Ephesus in Turkey, the historic island of Patmos and a boat trip BBO, all operating out of Pythagorion.

Samos has a fair amount of history of its own, as evidenced by remains in the environs of Pythagorion (which is itself named after the island's most famous son, Pythagoras). The most impressive of these are the ancient Temple of Hera and Evpalinus Tunnel, both dating from the 6th century BC. The former was a very important sanctuary indeed – vast but never actually completed; the latter an aqueduct over 1000m long bored through the mountain rock an amazing feat of engineering.

Finally Samos is known for its wine (the Golden Samena in particular is excellent). Perhaps that's why the temple remains still unfinished!

North Samos Kokkari

Transfer time 40 minutes

With its three good beaches, long colourful waterfront and picturesque fishing harbour, all overlooked by the characterful old village above, Kokkari is an ever-popular choice amongst all ages and nationalities.

Kokkari enjoys quite a cosmopolitan atmosphere – especially in the evenings. There is a wealth of eating places to choose from, ranging from traditional taverna to upmarket bistro, and some nightlife. Kokkari also has a couple of internet cafés.

The main pebble beach stretches for half a mile. Around the corner are two pretty shingle bays. A string of Samos' most famous beaches begins only a 20 minute walk to the west with Lemonakia.

A good bus service links Kokkari with Samos Town and Karlovassi. All excursions pick-up from the village, mountain bikes can be rented, there is a windsurf school, and the mountains behind offer fine walking opportunities.

South East Samos Pythagorion & Kerveli

Transfer time 10-30 minutes

Named after the island's most famous son, the ancient mathematician Pythagoras.

Pythagorion is Samos's biggest settlement on the south coast (there is not much competition!). Boasting a handsome semicircular harbour has a wide promenade lined with plenty of cafes and restaurants from which to enjoy the comings and goings.

Pythagorion is in fact a UNESCO World Heritage site. The island's tyrant ruler, Polykrates, had his capital here in the 6th century BC, and evidence of his original harbour walls can still be seen. There are the remains of Roman Baths to the west and the castle above the harbour dates from the 19th century.

The remarkable feat of ancient engineering that is Evpalinas Tunnel, in the hills above, was made to ensure the water supply in times of siege and was bored for over 1000 metres through the mountain in 550 BC. Even older (8BC) is the Temple of Hera 6 kms to the west, reputed to be the largest Ionic temple in Greece but all that remains is one gigantic column out of the 155 original pillars. The site of the temple is designated a UNESCO World Heritage Site.

Behind the harbour, narrow lanes and cobbled streets add to the characterful small town atmosphere.

Boat trips run to local beaches and include a picnic lunch; to Kusadasi in Turkey, from where you are taken to ancient Ephesus; and to Patmos for the day.

The town has a small but perfectly serviceable sandy beach just past the harbour, and to the west is the very long, clean sand/pebble beach which has sunbeds and umbrellas for hire, and seasonal watersports.

Between Pythagorion and Samos Town, peaceful Kerveli is a completely relaxing little seaside spot on the undeveloped east coast of the island

Kerveli looks towards Turkey, and is undoubtedly one of the loveliest and most sheltered bays on Samos, accessed only via a narrow road that winds down through beautiful wooded countryside and olive groves. A pair of excellent, friendly tavernas, one hotel, a shingle beach with tamarisk for shade and a turquoise sea, all against a backdrop of thickly wooded hills.

South West Samos Ormos & Votsalakia

Transfer time 45-60 minutes

The peaceful south-western corner of Samos contains some of the island's finest beaches and scenery.

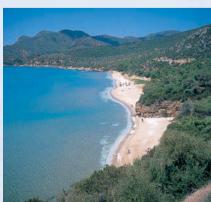

Ormos is a delight – a small traditional fishing village built around a working harbour, with a line of cafés and tavernas strung along the waterfront, a selection of useful local shops, a handful of apartments and just one hotel. Boat trips ran last summer from the newly expanded harbour. The small sand/shingle village beach has sun beds and umbrellas, and a longer 'wild' beach starts just beyond. A 15 minute walk over the headland brings you to a well liked alternative beach just before Votsalakia.

Ormos is a delightfully authentic and friendly little spot and the village provides everything you should need for a relaxed holiday in very 'Greek' surroundings.

A mile to the west over the headland, and easily walkable from Ormos, Votsalakia (sometimes called Kambos) also offers a quieter holiday but with the facilities of a small resort. Votsalakia spreads itself along its very long, fine beach and has a good choice of restaurants, café-bars and small shops. Cars and bicycles can be rented. The main sand/pebble beach is one of the longest on Samos – nearly two miles – with sun beds available, and offers good swimming in a very clean sea.

The whole region is fine walking country. Hikers will enjoy the trail up Mount Kerkis to Evangelistria monastery (a steep 3-4 hours – cheats can get closer by car and just walk the last bit!); whilst more casual ramblers must walk the 2½ km track above the sea from Limnionas to the wonderfully named 'Taverna at the End of the World', where you can swim from the beach below before taking a well earned lunch.

For all areas here car hire is recommended for further exploration as excursions and the bus service are very limited. If you have a car for a few days you can also drive to Pythagorion for a day trip to Ephesus and Turkey.

Villa Penny Near Kokkari

Villa Penny is one of our top properties in Greece and offers the highest standards and best views we have seen in the Kokkari area, not to mention one of the friendliest owners, the remarkably hospitable Dimitris. It is located on a hill across the road from well-known Lemonakia beach, a 15 minute walk from Kokkari.

The freshwater pool measures 100 sq m (depth 0.65m-2.2m) and is only for the seven apartments here. It also has a small splash pool ideal for children. WiFi is available free of charge throughout the property, including around the pool area.

Three of the 1-bedroom apartments are on the raised ground floor (one is first floor). They are fully air conditioned (both rooms), spacious, light and cool, each comprising an open-plan living room with one or two sofa beds (full sized) and an LCD TV with USB slot (bring your own films); a kitchen area with hob, mini-oven and fridge; twin or double bedroom; and a bathroom with hairdryer, bath and shower attachment. All are very well furnished and equipped and possess a free room safe and an iron and board. Each has a wide front terrace affording lovely views over Lemonakia in one direction and/or Kokkari Bay in the other.

The 2-bedroom apartment is on the top floor, and of a similar description with the addition of a second bedroom (one double, one twin). Picture windows give great views from the large living room, and its balcony runs the length of the apartment.

Two new units are to one side, a 1-bedroom apartment on the ground floor (twin beds plus two sofa beds in the living room) which has a spacious garden patio terrace to itself, and a beautifully light and airy open plan Junior Suite above which has the top floor to itself (double bed plus sofa bed). Both are very spacious (c 60 sq. m.), furnished and equipped to the same high standards as the others and boast gorgeous views towards Kokkari.

Due to the location, this property would not be suitable to anyone with walking difficulties without a car. Popular white-pebble Lemonakia Beach, quickly reached in under 5 minutes via a short cut down the hill, has two good tavernas. Of course a much wider choice can be found in Kokkari a 15 minute walk away but bring a torch for late night returns. Or, a taxi from Kokkari will take you for only a few euros.
