

Saronic Islands

The islands of the Argo-Saronic, to give them their full title, run south from Athens and hug the sheltered shoreline of the eastern Peloponnese.

They are the easiest islands to get to from Athens as they have a frequent and fast hydrofoil/catamaran service running from Piraeus, and as such do get busy at weekends and in high season with Athenians and foreign tourists alike. The closest (Aegina) can take just 40 minutes to reach; the furthest (Spetses) 2 hrs 15 mins.

Although all the Saronics are different they do have certain common characteristics. Here aromatic pine trees dominate more than olives, often running down to a rocky shoreline. There are sandy beaches but more often you will find many smaller shingle beaches and coves dotted around the coastline. The sea, is sparkingly clear everywhere.

Architecture is handsome, including elegant sea captain's mansions (especially on Hydra). Red-tiled roofs predominate rather than the flat Cycladic style.

These islands, being so near one another and easily reached from Piraeus, work very well as a twin-centre or island hopping itinerary or in combination with a short stay in Athens at the start. They have a long season and holidays can be arranged from the start of April to the end of October.

Tiny Agistri (55 mins from Piraeus), at just 13 sq kms in size, is the smallest of the chain and often overlooked. But the island packs a punch far greater than its size.

Agistri is heavily forested - in fact over 80% of the island is pine-covered. Easy walking is an attraction - there is nothing very steep (the highest point is 245m) and 3 walking paths have now been opened up, with more to come.

There are only three settlements on Agistri, linked by a bus. Skala is where most visitors stay, thanks to its spit of sandy beach overlooked by a blue-domed church. For such a small place Skala has a very wide choice of tavernas, cafes and small shops.

There is plenty to do - the waters around Agistri are turquoise-hued and very clear, so perfect for snorkeling (the bay of Aponisi in the south has Caribbean-like waters). Aegina can be reached in just 10 minutes by sea-taxi or hydrofoil, and you can easily visit Athens for the day. Horse riding, bike hire, sea kayaking, diving and boat excursions (including to the mainland Peloponnese and fishing trips) are on offer.

Lastly Agistri is very good value and prices are reasonable. Friendly, laid-back, genuine and very Greek, Agistri is a secret that you will not regret discovering.

On fashionable, upmarket Hydra (90 mins from Piraeus) all forms of private motorised transport are banned - the only way around is on foot, by boat or on a mule!

The main town and port is one of the most beautiful in Greece, with preserved neo-classical mansions, whitewashed village houses and narrow cobbled lanes climbing steeply up from the horse-shoe shaped harbour. The whole is preserved as a national monument. The mansions date from the 18th century and are a reminder of Hydra's prosperous past. The bustling port is at its best in the evenings, when the quayside twinkles with cafés, small shops, bars and atmospheric restaurants.

Although rocky, Hydra has some good beaches - some pebble, some sand, some backed by pines, some with a taverna or two. Outside the hotter periods walking is an attraction, and a network of signed paths offers plenty of variety. Non-walking options include mule-treks and the hire of a water-taxi for private use.

This magical island has been home to well-known artists and writers over the years. Although Hydra today receives plenty of visitors, the island has retained its small island charm and traditions, including many festivals.

Agistri coastline

Spetses (2hrs 15mins from Piraeus) is known as a retreat for the well-heeled Greeks (of which there remain more than you may think!), as evidenced by the discreet walled villas and glitzy yachts in the marina. Spetses Town is most attractive, with whitewashed bougainvillea-strewn mansions, wide piazzas and a pretty old harbour called Dapia.

As on Hydra cars are banned, so transportation is provided by horse-drawn carriage, bicycles, water-taxis and many buzzing mopeds. Taxis and two local buses also run.

There is a serviceable town beach, and also sandy Kaiki at the town's western end. Both can be busy in season but it is not difficult to find quieter beaches further afield.

Only 10 miles square, Spetses has a circular road running around the island, giving access to various beaches, the best being in the south. Walking trails run through the centre, passing through pine forests and beside ancient chapels on the way.

The Greek heroine, Laskarina Bou Boulina, was born here and led a tremendous fight against the Turkish fleet in 1821. Her life is commemorated in a little museum here. The naval festival over the second weekend of September re-enacts the battle with a famously spectacular event, for which the island is packed.

Saronic Islands Information

Getting to Agistri, Hydra and Spetses

Flights from Heathrow, Gatwick, Stansted, Manchester and Edinburgh to Athens. 1 hour taxi to Piraeus port for high speed cat or hydrofoil to the island (included - see descriptions for length of journey). Onward transfer to your accommodation on Agistri and Spetses. Transfers on Hydra are not provided as the hotels are close to the port but porters meet the boat if required. On your return the reverse applies.

Multi-Centre Options

Agistri connects only with Piraeus in Athens so a multitude of options are available.

Hydra and Spetses are neighbours so combine very easily - there is a minimum stay of 3 nights on each. All can be combined with Athens, or tailor-made with a wide variety of options - mainland fly-drive, Cycladic islands, and any island served by ferry or domestic flight from Athens (which is most of them!).

Representatives

We do not employ our own representatives on these islands and transfers are unescorted. Our hotels should be able to give any information required. We do have a local agent on Spetses and our main agents in Athens can always be contacted if required.

Oasis Hotel Agistri

The Oasis must be the best located hotel on Agistri. It is directly on Skala's sandy beach, and just a couple of minutes' easy walk from the centre of the village and a wide choice of tavernas, cafes and small shops.

The hotel has 25 rooms, either above the pool or the small garden to the rear. They are furnished in a classic style with iron beds (mostly doubles) and pretty decor. In-room facilities include AC, WiFi, TV, mini-fridge, tea-making equipment, room-safe and hairdryer. All rooms have a modern walk-in shower and good-sized covered balcony with sea, pool, garden or village/mountain views.

Skala, Agistri

The hotel has a spacious Suite, family maisonettes and rooms with garden access (no steps). It offers room service and a laundry service. The hotel also has a roof terrace spa with jacuzzis and a range of massage treatments. Wine tastings are arranged regularly, free of charge for guests.

To the front is the 90 sq m seawater pool, with a good terrace cafe-bar and restaurant to one side. On the beach sun beds can be reserved for guests free of charge, and beach towels provided.

Michalis and Dorina could not be more welcoming and are always on hand to help their guests get the most from their stay on Agistri. Recommended.

Hydroussa Hotel Hydra

The Hydroussa enjoys a very convenient location an easy 2-3 minute walk back from the harbour with no hills to climb. It is a 3-storey building designed in the attractive island style and looks over Votsi square to the front.

The 40 rooms here are all twin-bedded and possess AC, TV, mini-fridge and shower room. Furnishings are simple and traditional in flavour. Due to the age of this large former mansion rooms do not have balcony but most are spacious.

The lovely courtyard garden to the front has tables and chairs, and breakfast can be taken here. WiFi is available in public areas.

A very well-priced hotel for Hydra, a little dated in places but comfortable, well kept with some character and in a great location.

We can also arrange stays in an upmarket mansion hotel - see website for details.

Economou Mansion Spetses

Standing above the narrow seafront road, this restored sea captain's mansion dates from 1851 and has just six cosily furnished rooms. Carefully converted to preserve its character the hotel is a 10 minute walk above the sea from the centre and Dapia harbour.

All rooms possess traditional iron double bed, high wooden ceiling, AC, WiFi, mini-fridge, safety deposit box, tea-making facilities and a walk-in shower. The studios also have light cooking facilities. Due to the age of the building there are no balconies, but most have sea views through their window and one studio has an outdoor sea view patio in the garden to one side.

There is a delightfully furnished lounge, and a swimming pool (8m x 5m) in a walled garden area.

You will find a number of restaurants nearby, and it is a 10-15 minute walk to Kaiki beach as you
